

Contents

Foreword Marie-Claire Bergère / xiii

Acknowledgments / xix

Introduction / xxi

Chapter 1 The Laggards / 1

The Social Repercussions of Late Economic Development 2

Different Degrees of Cultural Heterogeneity 8

Divergence and Ultimate Convergence 12

Tsarism: An Even More Desperate Case Than the Guomindang 17

The Impact of World Wars and Civil Wars 19

Chapter 2 Catching Up / 23

The Economy 23

Qita 35

Chapter 3 Politics / 51

Stages ... 51

... and Similarities 53

Chinese Specificities? 63

Appreciation of the Differences and Their Origins 70

Chapter 4 The Peasants / 77

- Russia 77
- China 97
- Comparison 117

Chapter 5 Famines / 125

- Innocent Revolutionaries? 127
- The Great Turn 131
- The Great Leap Forward 140
- Comparisons 153

Chapter 6 Bureaucracy / 167

- Numbers 169
- Working Class Origins 172
- Mao and the New Chinese Class 175
- Behavior and Corruption: The Caste and Its Privileges 181
- After the Purge: The Transformation of the Elite and the Consolidation of Its Privileges 192

Chapter 7 Culture / 201

- Cultural Policies: Some Differences among the Massive Similarities 204
- Inevitable Similarities and Notable Differences in the Face of a Revolutionary Regime 228

Chapter 8 The Camps / 249

- Categories of Prisoners 253
- From Arrest to the Camp 257
- The Camps 264
- Thought Reform 279

Chapter 9 Dictators / 293

- The Most Cruel 303
- The Most Inconsistent 315
- Grand Terror and Cultural Revolution 325

Conclusion / 337

    Lenin ... 337

    ... and Marx 341

    Assessment 343

    Lies, Fear, and Debasement 345

Appendix Before and After: Yan'an, 1942–1943 / 351

Notes / 359

Works Cited / 411

Index / 439

The Chinese University Press : Copyrighted Materials